Saloniki, Nov. 23.—The resignation of Premier Skoufoudis of Greece, according to reports in circulation here, is expected momentarily on account of difficulties between Greece and Great Britain.

No Greek Ships Seized.
London, Nov. 23.—The foreign office states no Greek ships are being seized or held up in the ports of the United Kingdom and that no blockade of Greek ports has been instituted or is in force.

It is now believed the allied forces may take refuge on Greek territory and are hardly likely to be subjected to attacks from the rear. The most significant indication as to the present attitude of Greece is contained in the remarks by M. Rallis, Greek minister of justice, who is quoted in a press dispatch as having complained bitterly of methods adopted by entente allies. He argued that their tardiness in bringing effective support for the Serbians made Greek participation impossible. M. Rallis declared, however, that the Greeks were determined to maintain neutrality and the entente alms had no reason to fear danger if they should be forced across the Greek border. The French military position in Macedonia is reported to have improved. The assertion is made that the Bulgarians retired to their positions after a vain attack on the Greek

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New Haven, Conn., Nov. 23.—William H. Taft, chairman of the Central committee of the American Red Cross, makes public a statement in correcttion of recently published reports, concerning the shipment of anti-tetanus serum to Austria. Mr. Taft points out that the reports have intimated that the Austrian consulate in New York plotted to obtain possession of the cases of serum.

the cases of serum, which had been prepared by the New York City Board of Health. In justice to the Austrian consul general, Mr. Taft, on behalf of the Red Cross, denies the intimation of the published reports, and makes known the facts in detail as follows:

The American Red Cross had a consignment of eleven boxes of anti-tetanus serum, prepared by the New York City Board of Health, for the Austrian Red Cross. Eight (8) boxes only were received in time for shipment, the balance being held up by the ment, the remaining three boxes arriving a day or two late. As there would not be another Austrian shipment for some time, and there were no facilities at the warehouse for keeping this serum cold in warm weather to preserve its efficiency, the Red Cross agent telephoned to the Austrian Consulate asking if it could find some means of sending over these additional three boxes. The Consulate, through the courtesy of Mrs. Hurd and Mr. Wedd, were able to make arrangements for this.

make arrangements for this shipment. The steamer was to sail on the 1st of June, early in the morning. The 31st of May was a holiday, and our agent requested that these boxes be taken by the Consulate on Saturday, as the warehouse would not be open on Sunday and Monday and there would not be time Tuesday morning, June 1st, to get the boxes from Brooklyn to Hoboken. It was, therefore, in compliance with the request of the agent of the Red Cross that the Consulate sent for the boxes on Saturday, said

BELOIT BOUT HOLDS INTEREST FOR FANS

Young Scotty, Jones Island, Sluggo, Meets Clint Flynn of Chicago.— Four Matches.

Janesville ring fans will have their first taste of the mitt game tonight, when the opening exhibition of the New Line City Association at the Wilson theatre at Beloit occurs. The new Beloit club will stage four bouts and a goodly number of Janesville men will be at the ringside to witness the bouts.

Young White, of Oakbrook, billed as the champion of the Northwest, in the lightweight ranks, is to meet Jack Redmond, veteran lightweight, for ten rounds in the wind-up bout. White is a clever boxer and has been winning a number of ring encounters during the past two months. Redmond packs a hard punch and while he is probably behind White in cleverness, he is far superior in ruggedness and punching ability.

The semi-windup is what interests the Janesville fans and this battle promises to be the best of the evening. Young Scotty, the 122-pound champ from Jones Island, Milwaukee, who is a ripping, slugging demon with a punch of a heavyweight, will go against Clint Flynn of Chicago. Not much is known of Flynn, but it is a sure thing that he will have a merry battle if Scotty is in condition. These two featherweights will meet for eight rounds at 135 pounds, which is six pounds over Scotty's usual poundage. "Bud" Corbett, formerly of Burlington, now of Beloit, will meet Bill Klein of Proctor for eight rounds. Klein is the youngest who put up such a thrilling mill against a Milwaukee featherweight here two years ago. Welterweights Frankie Russell and Red will clash in a four-round bout as a curtain raiser. George Dunn, of Milwaukee, will referee the bouts.

FRESHMAN AND SOPH. STRUGGLE ENDS 0-0

First and Second Year Football Elevens Unable to Decide Which Is Best Team—Game Ends 0-0.

Yesterday afternoon the first of the class football games of the high school was played between the freshmen and sophomore elevens. The sophomore team was able to score and the game ended 0-0. The heavy second year men were unable to make any headway through the light-foot freshman team. Although the sophomores had the ball in their possession of the greater part of the time, the freshmen outplayed them most of the game. Captain Nuzum and Cassidy of the first year team made many gains and were a good show of the tackles. Hogan and Welsh on the sophomore squad were the main supporters of their team. This game will undoubtedly be played over again to see which team will play the winners of the junior-senior game. The lineups were as follows:

Sophomores—
Freshmen—
Welsh qb. Cassidy
Brotherson rb. Mills
Davidson lb. Nuzum
Hogan fb. Buell
Smith fb. Duggan
Hammer fb. Finley
Roberly lg. Daggett
Wobly lg. Gagan

It is understood that Champion Jess Willard was so much impressed with conditions at the Havana race track, where he fought Jack Johnson last winter, that he made a promise to the owners of the plant that his next fight would be where his victory over Johnson took place. E. D. Brown, who conducts the race meetings at Havana, is confident that when Willard signs his next articles of agreement he will stipulate Cuba as the place of battle. Originally it was the intention to pull off the Johnson-Willard bout at the Johnson-Willard hotel, but Juarez, Mexico, but Johnson stopped off at Havana en route there, and was then persuaded to have the fight held in Cuba. Willard frequently has praised the treatment he received at the hands of the Havana promoters, and, furthermore, there would be no question about the battle being allowed there.

The American league teams are going even further than the National leaguers in cutting down on the training trip. Last winter the National leaguers passed a rule that its clubs should not permit the players to start training until March 1. One club, the Giants, was accused of violating this rule by having what was called a "house-warming party" at Marlin during February. The clubs found the new rule to work out so well that they are not likely to rescind it this winter.

Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Browns, expects George Satter, the former Michigan athlete, to be a great attraction next season as a Tiger. Satter proved himself a most versatile player in the last campaign. He was successful as a pitcher, outfielder and first baseman, but the chances are his real forte is in the outfield where his speed and throwing ability would stand him in good stead. However, it is expected a whole lot to have Satter become another Cobb. He is not as alert as the other great player and, while he possesses a lot of natural ability, he is not apt to be the sensation Cobb is. Baseball has never seen Cobb's equal. Last season was perhaps the best that the Georgia Peach has ever enjoyed. He played in almost every game and gave the club his every effort.

Pittsburgh wants Barney Dreyfuss to appoint Glenn Warner manager of the Pirates. Fans think he would be able to find a line to break up the Phils' run-and-hit.

Not an American league twirler picked a no-hit game during the season of 1915. This is one of the rarest incidents in the history of the league, for few seasons have been recorded where there was not at least one twirler who won his way into the hall of fame. There were twelve instances where a pitcher let his pointers down with one hit. The peerless Walter Johnson not only missed the hitless mark, but failed to get as good as a one-hit performance.

Tennis enthusiasts are unwilling to concede that Miss Molla Bjurstedt would have beaten Mrs. Tom Bundy (nee May Sutton) when the latter was in her prime several years ago. Recently the two met in a match in Chicago and the Norwegian won, 10-8, 6-2. Mrs. Bundy gave the present American champion a nip and tuck battle in the first set, but was so exhausted in the second that Miss Bjurstedt won as she pleased. What would have been the result had the two clashed when Mrs. Bundy wore the crown is hard to say.

If, as rumored, Arnold Gandil, first baseman of the Nationals, is in the market, then the highest bidder for his services ought to be Charles F. Somers, owner of the Indians. All that the one-time Shreveport policeman did against the Cleveland club last season was mere to register a batting average of .204, his percentage for the year being .238.

Otis L. Guernsey, the Yale full-back who starred in the Princeton game with his two field goals, is a graduate of Taft school. He is twenty-two years old, weighs 184 pounds, and is six feet tall. He was badly injured in the college game and did not play for more than a month.

WOMAN WHO THAT ON-CHAP IS? JONES HE CAME HERE FROM KENTUCKY— GREY TOBACCO GOOD TOBACCO. MY FRIENDS UP HERE WILL NOW LEARN THAT SALT BRINGS OUT THE GOOD RICH TOBACCO TASTE.

WHEN a fellow's been brought up along-side of rich tobacco, he naturally likes to give his friends the benefit of the facts. And directly they are telling their friends about the Real Tobacco Chew. A little bit satisfies and saves coin. It's one tobacco that don't need to hide its taste under licorice and sweetening. A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

ASK YOUR DEALER FOR W-B CUT CHEWING TOBACCO. IT IS THE NEW REAL TOBACCO CHEW—CUT LONG SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

(Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.)

The Pacific Coast league has barred all major league clubs from playing exhibition games in its parks. At a meeting of the league a few days ago the "barnstormers" were officially placed on the taboo list. Such contests were termed by President Allan T. Baum as a menace to the life of "the goose that lays the golden egg," as they detracted from the interest in the game.

POLITICS VS. VARSITY.

One reads with real relief the editorial in the Chicago Tribune which arraigns the political hierarchy which certain educational interests in the state university at Madison sought to perpetuate, and when blocked in their efforts instantly objected most strenuously to the curbing of the extensive experimental system they installed at the expense of the taxpayers. A portion of the Tribune article is quoted to illustrate that the Tribune has at last waked up to the fact that perhaps the university should not be allowed to completely control state politics, leaving nothing for the voter and taxpayer but the payment of the excessive bills they incur. The Tribune says:

"From an article written by Joseph Jastrow in the Educational Review it appears that the University of Wisconsin still feels hurt that its academic freedom has been invaded by the legislature. The professors consider that the attacks on the university are wholly unwarranted. The gentlemen should not feel hurt. For when in the full swing of the progressive movement it was discovered that educators had practical capabilities, were able and willing to translate their theories into acts, the old political parties in the state discovered that the university had political power. The discovery was hailed by the country as a novelty and was dubbed the Wisconsin idea. Education, it was thought, had found a new kind of seven league boots, and was dragging the state rapidly to perfection. However much the faculty may deny it, the university was in politics. When the progressive wave died down the professors attempted retreat behind the fence of academic freedom, but the old parties were ruthless and made incursions. By being practical, by applying theories, the professors gave up the special privilege of academic freedom. It is not surprising that the Wisconsin idea came a cropper. They had shown that their freedom was not merely academic."

Yet in the face of this arraignment comes the accident of Saturday last when many persons were seriously injured by the falling of the temporary grandstand at the football game. Instead of thanking providence that no one was killed, President Van Hise, in an interview published in the Wisconsin State Journal, the mouthpiece of the anti-administration forces, lays the blame for the accident upon the last legislature and their refusal to make an adequate appropriation for permanent concrete stands for the athletic field. Yet some people will say that the university is devoid of aspirations political. It is very poor taste for the president of the institution to lay the blame upon the state administration that only sought to curb wasteful expenditures of the state's money for experimental purposes and would spend millions rather than have the life of one student or one visitor to the university's athletic life endangered by a faulty construction of any building, grandstand or anything of that nature.

That the public may understand what is referred to, the following is the copy of the interview with President Van Hise, as published in the Wisconsin State Journal on Sunday morning, November 21, the day following the accident in which so many Rock county residents' lives were endangered.

"We have been afraid something like this might happen ever since years ago a stand gave way in Chicago. The old north stand was condemned because it was regarded as unsafe and we have for years been using a concrete stand at Camp Randall. For years we have realized the need of adequate concrete stands to accommodate the crowds at our great athletic events and last year we put it in the program that was presented to the legislature and the item of $40,000 for this work was allowed by the joint finance committee just as requested, but it was cut out by a substitute bill offered on the floor of the senate one half of the sum was reinstated. This sum, however, is wholly inadequate to build the kind of a stand needed and so the university is forced to continue with this same danger confronting it until we can secure enough money to build the concrete structure that is absolutely needed. Today's accident shows how imperative is the need."

JUGGLING FINANCES.

The extraordinary juggling of Uncle Sam's funds which has been a leading characteristic of Secretary McAdoo's administration of the treasury department has been mercilessly exposed by ex-Senator Bourne, who, as he frankly explains, was himself unable to solve the "high finance" methods of Mr. McAdoo and was able to make them clear only with the aid of an expert accountant. The work of the accountant shows that the available cash balance in the treasury is actually $3,517,000, instead of $109,000,000, as maintained by Mr. McAdoo. Twice during his two years' administration Mr. McAdoo has juggled the figures and changed the form of the treasury statement to deceive the public as to the actual cash balance and to conceal the tremendous deficit which this administration is piling up. On March 5, 1913, the first day of this administration, the treasury balance was $82,210,619. Had Mr. McAdoo not juggled the form of statement it would not show a balance of only $3,500,000, and that is rapidly diminishing that by the time congress meets it doubtless will be nothing at all. It is not charged that Mr. McAdoo's present statements contain any literal falsehood, but it is a fact—and one which Mr. McAdoo cannot deny—that the form of statement has been twice changed in order to deceive the public and to create the false impression that the balance in the treasury is now $109,000,000. This has been accomplished by including in the general balance trust funds which have been and must, under the law, be set aside for specific purposes. It is precisely as if a man became manager of a business which had $10,000 in cash in the bank and owed $2,000 in debts, and he were to make a statement that he was a net working capital of $8,000; as if he were trustee for a church fund of $40,000 and, after two years of his management, he were to increase the debts to $12,000 showing a deficit of $4,000, but in making a statement to his creditors he said: "Why, I have a balance in the bank of $42,000," counting in the trust fund, no part of which he could rightly use to pay the debts of the business. Mr. McAdoo has stated that the Senator Bourne's statement is "ridiculous," that there is $109,000,000 in the treasury, but he does not deny that if he had not pursued "high finance" methods to change the form of the treasury statement, it would have shown that the available balance of $32,000,000 had been reduced to $3,500,000.

Eph. Wiley says the women would get on better with the men if they used more velvet and less sandpaper.

A woman seldom is pretty enough to overcome the handicap imposed by her wedding gown.

Nothing much that is new in the flying business. The jack rabbit and the antelope have been doing it for years.

When a woman admires a homely man, she doesn't admit that he is ugly. She merely says he is different looking.

The men are homely, but they often show good taste. When a Chinaman sues his wife for divorce a white man is named as a co-spondent.

Advice to young husbands: Do not hang around the house too long. A woman soon begins to hate a man who is always under her feet.

If the punishment is to be made to fit the crime the man who invented the hammock should be sentenced to sleep in it.

As one interested in the ethics of sartorial art, we desire to ask why the man who puts the high school horse through its paces invariably dresses the act in evening clothes.

THE VALUE OF A VOTE.

Public men rarely fail to cast their ballots. They have too much occasion to see how public business suffers from the inattention of the average citizen. Also it would suggest their own lack of civic virtue, if they failed to take all possible pains to exercise the suffrage.

Most presidents have thus made it a practice to travel long distances to vote at home elections. President Wilson followed the usual custom this time, when he traveled three times to New Jersey to vote at the primary, suffrage referendum election. It took valuable time, but the example set made the trip worth while.

The average citizen takes duties lightly. He would not take a railroad journey of any length whatever to cast a vote. He may forget the closing hour in his own town, and lose his rights and the day is rainy, he can't take the pains to visit the polls. He complains bitterly of government inefficiency. Yet he won't take a dollar's worth of time to support the best man to work against such inefficiency.

A man of more than average intelligence was talking about this the other day. "I always know who is running for governor," he said. "Also I know who the local candidates for the legislature are. But that's all I ever know about politics. Most of the men I associate with are the same. They never read anything about what congress does or the legislature. They see everything in the football news or on the baseball page."

These easy standards of civic obligation existing it is no wonder the politician and the easy to lead people around by the nose. A man can't cast an intelligent ballot merely by reading newspaper headlines, merely by listening to scraps of talk in barber shops. Let him reflect that inefficient government adds more to the cost of living than all the unjust exactions of the trusts. These men in public office are his agents, paid by him to do his service. He should know every day what they are up to and why.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

When father bought his new fall hat, it sure took mother's gimps. She sized it up and told him that it was a round affair, high crowned. With very narrow rim. A gray drub band ran all around; She made a kind of him. She said: "I have heard that you'd gone into vaudeville. You look like a ribbon-counter dude. That shrieks loud and shrill. So pa, I can no mossback yap. And you can bet your pile I wear this fireworks thing mayhap, Because it is the style."

When mother got her new fall hat, it was a scream. And father up and told her that. She looked a burlesque peach. It was the dullest looking thing. That had ever been. And she had a yellow wing. And trimming that was green. Said he: "The milliners must be insane, there's not a doubt. Go to the window instantly. And throw the blamed thing out." "You brute," ma screamed, "I'll tell you that. You're my most aching trial. I've simply got to wear this hat. Because it is the style."

NO ALUM—NO PHOSPHATE

Well, Why Not, indeed. According to a wounded deer, a day before one of the big attacks, a curious thing happened. A board bearing the inscription: "The English Are Fools."

No one wasted a bullet on such poor abuse. The board went down and reappeared with the addition: "The French Are Fools."

It was ignored by the British. Then the board came up again with a third line: "We Are Fools."

A lively interest was now awakened in the board. On its last appearance it bore the inscription: "Why Not All Go Home?"

Don't For Husbands. Don't begin making excuses Monday when you want to stay out Friday or Saturday evening. It arouses suspicion. The quick and unexpected get-away is safer.

Don't criticize the style in which she does up her hair. Don't speak an admiring word of your neighbor's pretty wife. Don't swear in the house. Get out behind the barn.

Don't fail to admire the hat that she makes herself. Encourage her as much as possible whether you like the hat or not. That's the way to get rich.

Why So Many Go to New York. Judd Lewis (Crawley) a little old lyre and shows by this what comes out of Texas besides onions: "If you should make a mousetrap better than we made before, then the world would wear a pathway through the Jimsons to your door."

That's the way some one expressed it. We can't remember who, but we haven't any notion in the world but that it's true. You'd have a path worn quicker, though, than by that mousetrap stunt; if you'd have the people coming to your coop to hang their heads, you'd have a million fellers round you from sunup till dark. Let the news get out about you that you are an easy mark.

WENT TO THE HOSPITAL.

C. E. Blanchard, postmaster at Blanchard, Cal., writes: "I had kidney trouble so bad I had to go to the hospital. Foley Kidney Pills were recommended to me and they completely cured me. I cannot speak too highly of them. Sufferers in every state have had similar benefit from this standard remedy for kidney and bladder ailments. It banishes backache, stiff joints, swollen muscles and all the various symptoms of weakened or diseased kidneys. W. T. Sherer."

The Daily Novelette

Poor Eudora!

—Before marriage, a timid man doesn't know what to say, and after marriage he is afraid to say it.

While Mrs. Podsnipper was beating the squeals out of a little Eudora, Mr. Podsnipper came and stood in the doorway, stroking his chin, although it was not particularly in need of stroking that afternoon.

"Why are you lambasting little Eudora, my dear?" he inquired finally. "Look at the state of my things!" snarled Mrs. Podsnipper, and went on lambasting.

And in truth, her things were in a grievous state. Her sewing basket was upside down on the gas jet, and all the thread, needles and jinxcracks were strewn hither and yon something dreadful. The floor was a litter of linens and linings and the whole room looked like an earthquake.

"But my love," said Mr. Podsnipper after another pause. "Eudora didn't do that."

"Thea who did?" demanded Mrs. P. "I did," replied her husband. You see, after I went up in my den and found that you had fixed everything so nice for me, all my private papers and all, I thought the least I could do was to come down here and arrange your things in return."

"I guess I'll stop whipping Eudora."

PLAINTIFF IN CASE HAS A LONG SIEGE ON WITNESS STAND

(It ended with a pun.)

Smiley, John R. Jones, H. L. Moseley, Louis Lemmewell, Stanton, M. L. Thompson, George Nichols, B. C. Smiley and R. S. Thompson.

O. A. Oestreich and M. O. Mount, of the law firm of Jeffers, Mount, Oestreich and Avery, represented the plaintiff, Mrs. Abraham. Mr. Nolan represented the defendant, George G. Sutherland.

Until adjournment at 5:45 to 9 o'clock this morning, Mr. Oestreich and Mr. Cunningham held the floor in their opening addresses to the jury. Mr. Oestreich's address was sensational in nature and vividly outlined the points, which he alleged the issue of the case and explained the term dures or property obtained by fear or fright or panic. He said that two kinds of dures were practiced; that of false imprisonment, the plaintiff's husband, Guernsey Abraham, and also the extortion of money.

Abraham and Nolan, it was stated, went into partnership in the grocery business May 22, 1913. Irregularities in the part of Abraham brought on the case. On January 5, 1915, Mr. Oestreich claimed that Abraham was called to the office of Mr. Cunningham in the post office of Cunningham ran up the chief of police and related that they had been looking for Abraham for several days, but were unable to find him and that they desired to get into communication with him; that, after a trip to Abraham's home, the chief of police came to Mr. Cunningham's office and was present, as was also Abraham, who had arrived in the meantime while Cunningham, engineering, Nolan and other information to secure a settlement with Abraham. It was also further shown, he said, that Abraham was falsely imprisoned on the say-so of Cunningham.

Oestreich Outlines Case.
Mr. Oestreich said later testimony will show that Abraham was in Cunningham's office without an attorney and that when he wanted to leave, they turned him over to the chief of police. The latter did not want to take the man to the lockup, he said, the facts will show, because he had no papers to keep Abraham in custody.

The alleged coming to the post-office of Mrs. Abraham, the conversation in Cunningham's office, the trip back to her home to get $900, made in a rural carrier's rig, of the subsequent settlement by Mrs. Abraham of $900, on the paper drawn up turning over to Abraham, the interest in the store, he went into much detail. Mr. Oestreich announced that the plaintiff will prove that it was through Cunningham and Nolan that Cunningham and Nolan were able to get the money from her and later, the half share of the store owned by her husband, who signed the paper while at the city jail lockup.

Mr. Cunningham took the floor to elucidate his version of the case. He contended that the points of the case as made by his attorneys were greatly exaggerated, and in his explaining away he put a different color on divers incidents of the case as presented by Mr. Oestreich. Mr. Cunningham said that Abraham admitted in his office at the postoffice on January 5, 1915, of writing and cashing checks without charging them to his account and taking out an average of three dollars per check from the firm's cash. Abraham is also alleged to have shipped away goods.

Attorney Oestreich explained that he secured a sum in excess of $2,000 and that Nolan wanted a settlement, hired Cunningham with the result that Abraham's wife came forward. Mr. Nolan was willing to settle and on the plea of Mrs. Abraham would keep it quiet and out of the papers, for $1,000 and Abraham's interest in the concern. On the announcement that Abraham had credit for $100 more than Nolan, the sum was reduced accordingly.

That the point made so much of by the plaintiff, that of taking her home in a rural carrier's rig, was but a happening of chance will be shown into the testimony by the defense. On her willingness to settle with a moneyed man, the defense will make to secure a back for Mrs. Abraham to go to her home for the money. A livery was called up since the day was dark and ice and slush covered the streets but the driver had to turn his rig to make a train. No conveyance was available and a postoffice employee was asked to take the lady to her home. He did so.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Sunny Italy Casts "White Sister"
 Spell. The enchantment of sunny Italy cast its spell over F. Marion Crawford and held him in its thrall. He spent years in this land of sunshine, of gorgeously painted seas and skies, dreaming of love romances that blossomed in ancient castles, of sorrows and tragedies buried within convent walls.

A wonderful inspiration came to him. He conceived a story of a great love, of a heart-rending separation, and his soul poured forth all its depth of feeling, all its wealth of imagery in "The White Sister." Then was born the greatest work of his master mind.

 Viola Allen was captivated by the great dramatic possibilities of this romance. She felt the soul stirring tragedy of the white sister with all her intense nature, and she put her entire heart into the interpretation of the part. How well she succeeded in bringing out all the great human qualities of the play is attested by its wonderful reception on the speaking stage.

Bessany was quick to see and grasp the exceptional opportunity to produce this great work of fiction through the medium of one of the greatest actresses. It used all his artistic and technical mastery of production to immortalize the inspiration of F. Marion Crawford through Viola Allen's genius of interpretation. And it has given to the world the greatest and most stupendous photoplay ever produced. "The White Sister" is now being shown at the Majestic.

AT THE PRINCESS.

Charles Winninger in Pictures Tonight
 Charles Winninger of the Winninger Bros. Stock company, who has been seen on the local stage many times in comedy parts, will be featured at the Princess in a Universal two reel comedy entitled "Mr. Pirt in Wrong." It is an uproariously funny comedy which gives the popular local favorite rare chances to create a laugh.

The department store owner discovered that his floorwalker is the man who has been flirting with his wife as a result of his detection.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Large Sum Spent to Stage "The White Sister."
 Photoplay enthusiasts seldom realize the expense which producers of motion pictures go to in procuring realistic settings and atmosphere. An example of this fact is seen in scenes of the six-act photoplay, "The White Sister," produced by Bessany, in which the furnishings used cost far up in the thousands of dollars. Some of the rarer furniture, necessarily of foreign design, was imported at great cost from Europe. Bessany has an expert spend weeks procuring material for the interior scenes. This is one of the reasons why this film version of F. Marion Crawford's book, in which Viola Allen stars, is noted as one of the most costly productions of the year. This film is shown here at the Majestic.

AT THE APOLLO.

Cyril Maude in Ibsen's "Peer Gynt."
 Hendrik Ibsen's immortal masterpiece will be presented on the Paramount Picture Program at the Apollo tonight. The medium of the noted English actor and theatrical manager, in the title role.

When a capricious Gubrandale bride refuses to come out to be married, the rollicking "Peer Gynt" pretends to lend a hand, but once he has coaxed the girl out of the cabin he closes the door on the howling swain, spins the not unwilling girl away to a cave in the mountains. Banned for the bride theft, Peer begins a world-wide wandering, and his susceptibility to beautiful women plunges him into thrilling experiences with beautiful types of every land and clime. But once after another they reveal selfish ends and work to his undoing.

He loses his sailing ship and narrowly escapes irons when his beautiful Annabel Lee turns out to be an agent of the secret service on his trail for slaying. By mere luck he escapes unscathed from the duel he is dragged into by an aristocratic little flirt of old Virginia. An Indian girl in the north woods inveigles him out of his precious belt of silver for and then deserts him, and his escape from lurking redskins is by such a hair that a rifle bullet knocks the very paddle out of his canoe. Years pass but do not bring him any better women, and he falls victim to the voluptuous charm of Anitra, a soulless dancing girl of the desert, only to have her strip him of the very gems in his turban and the rings upon his fingers.

Age finds him an embittered, cynical old man, and "Peer Gynt" drifts back to Gubrandale to die, but he finds waiting there a faithful sweetheart of his wild youth, the pure, gentle Solveig—as lovely a character as man ever left weeping behind him. So when the Button Moulder, personifying the Saver of Souls, comes to cast Peer back into the Melting Pot to be moulded over because his wasted life proves him without design, it is Solveig's devotion which saves him. The good in him has lived after all in her faith, in her hope and in her love. A pity more of us cannot get back to Gubrandale.

AT THE APOLLO.

Blanche Sweet Tonight With Carlyle Blackwell.
 The ever popular film star, Blanche Sweet, will be seen at the Apollo tonight in a dual role, as Dorothy, a sweet, demure girl and Lark, the incorrigible, in David Belasco's greatest dramatic success, "The Case of Becky." It is a drama of hypnotism and is Miss Sweet's admirers an opportunity to see her in two distinct personalities in the same picture. With her is Carlyle Blackwell, Theodore Roberts and James Neill in the leading roles.

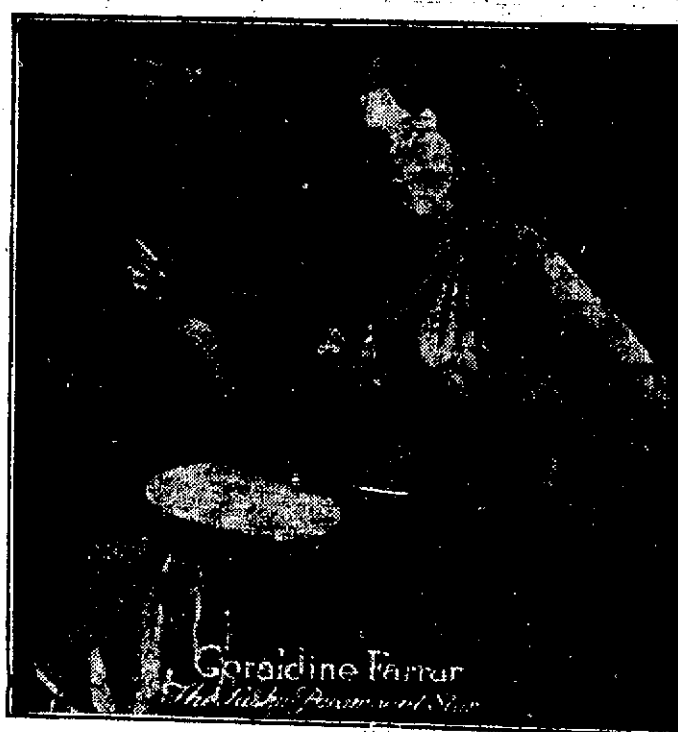

AT THE APOLLO.

"The Killarney Girls" is a Redpath Lyceum Attraction.
 "The Killarney Girls," which comes to the Apollo next Monday, is one of those exceptional musical and entertaining attractions which has achieved distinctive success. The program is a story of human life, of the great wholesome men and women of Ireland. It touches the heartstrings of every one, and is dedicated to the Irish people of each community. Like Killarney will seem a bit more real to you. The turf fields, the peasantry, the River Shannon and Killarney will have a new interest for you and all.

There is an abundance of good music in the program. Every one of the six Killarney Girls is a splendid singer. It is not too much to say that this is by far the strongest ensemble lady singing organization on the Lyceum platform. The instrumental part is well sustained, and brilliantly seconds the superb singing numbers.

WHO HAS NOW MADE HER PHOTOPLAY DEBUT AND SAYS SHE LOVES IT!
 The shawl used by Geraldine Farrar, the international prima donna in the photodramatic production of "Carmen," which will be the attraction at the Apollo on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, is more than one hundred years old. It was an heirloom of an old Spanish family, who, through poverty, were forced to sell it. Miss Farrar picked it up in an antique shop in Madrid during her last engagement at the Spanish capital.

GOLF CLUB DANCE ON THANKSGIVING NIGHT

House Committee Plan for the Last Activity for the Present Year on Thanksgiving.

On Thursday evening next, the annual Thanksgiving night dance of the Sunnyside Golf club will be held at the Assembly hall with the Milwaukee Country club orchestra of six pieces furnishing the music for the dancing. While the season's social activities at the club house closed some weeks ago, this is the last official appearance of the Nineteen Fifteen house committee, of which Mrs. H. E. McCoy has been chairman. During the summer months there have been weekly card games, the regular club day suppers, entertainments, dances or musicals and the season has been a most successful one. The party on Thursday is the end of the committee's labors and it is expected it will be as successful as the previous entertainments. The dancing will commence at nine o'clock and there will be two-steps and waltzes on the program, as well as some of the later dances, so that all may enjoy the evening. The members of the Beloit Country club have responded nobly to the invitation to be present and in the city, via the interurban, to charge of the arrangements at that end. The decorations will be most elaborate, arrangements having been made for the use of those put up for the Trainers' annual ball, which occurs on Thanksgiving Eve. These, it is said, will be more extensive than ever before. Aside from the Beloit visitors, it is expected there will be several parties from Fort Atkinson, Evansville, Edgerton and Madison. This annual dance of the Golf club is always one of the opening features of the winter season's social activities and this year's program promises to be as pleasing as those of past parties.

The Spirit of Thanksgiving

WAS instilled into the soul of this great nation 294 years ago by our Pilgrim forefathers—the primitive fields and forests being the only source of supply for their festivities.

TODAY the true spirit of Thanksgiving still prevails but the great hand of progress has drawn a veil of modernism over the day and we often overlook the single touches of nature so harmonious with the occasion.

Could you give more pleasure to all assembled than by an artistic arrangement of seasonal flowers for the Thanksgiving Dinner table?

You can also arrange through us for the delivery of a gift of flowers to the one who is not able to join the festivities.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. E. L. LEONARD

John Suther is Certain Now That Money is Not All.

"I got a letter from Molly today. She is coming home next week. John Suther waved the message joyfully in the air. 'It's six weeks since she was taken sick.'"

"You look as if you had been through a fit of sickness yourself," remarked Julia Osgood, glancing up from her typewriter.

"I have found out there is more than one kind of trouble in the world; that money trouble is a worry but not a grief. I thought for one while that I should lose you."

"Molly and you may be a little money matters shrunk to their proper place."

"And that when money difficulty was piling up worse than ever, too, Julia was rattling off letters, so was not very talkative."

John slipped the letter from the envelope and turning to the last page read:

"I hope we will learn to think of this sickness as the kindest thing that ever happened to us. To me at least it has brought a wider horizon. Life will never again mean a petty round of duties; an absorbing attention to eating, dressing and going. I wish you could have heard the things this wonderful old lady has said to me. She has made me see that men help each other by their joys and not their sorrows; that they can be of most comfort to those who live with them."

if they have strength and peace of soul. And we can have this happiness in our little home, even when pinching to pay our debts. Nay, because we are the past. It is not so, my husband? hope my eyes are through with the feeble unrefreshing tears that my selfishness made so common. I hope to be a real help in your life, not a drag on the wheel, making progress difficult.

"Good-bye, dear."

"Yours hopefully, lovingly,"

"MOLLY."

John folded the letter, tucked it into the envelope and slipped it into his pocket. The worry lines were all smoothed out of his face as his eyes traveled up and down long columns of figures.

When the hour for closing came he put on his coat and drawing his cap well over his ears started for a long walk into the country. The snow crunched under his feet and he had to beat his hands together in his trousers to keep them warm, but it was a smiling contented face that presented itself at Dr. Ellison's door an hour later.

"Come in, man. I've been trying to find you for half an hour to ask you at the table now."

"I have been for a walk. I was trying to work up an appetite for my cooking," laughed John.

"Well, the walk has given you a fine color. You should try the dose every day," prescribed Dr. Ellison.

"I can't unless Molly is able to go, too. I shall be so glad to have her back that I shall not want her out of my sight," John smiled happily into his face.

"So she is coming home? Good!" exclaimed the doctor.

"Next week." The doctor wrung John's hand in silence.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

What is migraine or "meggim"? or sick headache, as it is variously called? It is a periodic attack of pain in the head, usually one-sided, first appearing about the age of forty, and continuing more or less until the age of forty-five, much more common in women than in men, and, by good authorities, considered to be the sensory equivalent of the motor disturbance epilepsy.

Migraine has hereditary factors precisely like epilepsy. In some families one child suffers from epilepsy while another has migraine.

The attack is ushered in with some form of "aura" or warning symptoms, much as is the case in an epileptic before the eyes or some peculiar local or general sensation which tells the victim an attack is impending. Sometimes the nausea and headache develop without any warning.

There is usually vomiting before the seizure is past. But the vomiting does not necessarily mark the passing of the pain in the head, although it often appears to bring some relief.

Certain it is that the great bugbear autointoxication, the indigestion, is at play in most cases of migraine. It is a notable fact that indigestion, which is pretty good evidence of protein purification in the intestine, is a symptom of many cases of migraine. In our own personal experience—that is, in private practice, we think we have obtained the best results by (1) diet selected to obviate protein indigestion, (2) the bowel (using the indicant test as a guide)—indican in the urine, that means: a de-compound produced by putrefaction of nitrogenous materials (protein in the bowels), and (2) treatment directed toward correcting the function of the internal secretory system.

Of course no one knows the cause of epilepsy or the cause of migraine. Possibly different causes are accountable in different cases. And obviously there can be no remedy applicable in all cases.

The average woman with sick headache is a rebellious, unfaithful, altogether unsatisfactory patient, because between whiles she may feel quite well and then she is very apt to forget the doctor's instructions until the next attack reminds her that she must obey orders.

Migraine is not a nervous disease. Strong, healthy women, with no trace of nervous temperament, often have it.

The poor unfortunate stomach comes in for most of the blame, but in fact it is almost always not guilty. The victim should beware of two evils: The use of heart-stimulating "migraine tablets," and the abuse of cathartics in the futile effort to keep the stomach at ease. The eyestrain theory has been tried over and over and found wanting.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Bathing for Fever.

At what temperature should one give a sponge bath (tepid) to a fever case?

Answer.—The temperature is not the guide. Bathing is done, not to lower temperature, but to stimulate circulation through the nervous system.

Household Hints

GIFT SUGGESTIONS.

Very handsome neckties for men can be made easily at home from leftover silk or remnants purchased at sales for a very small price. If purchased ready made they would cost anywhere from 75 cents to $1.50, according to the quality of silk.

It takes just one-third yard of two-inch wide silk to make a large four-inch necktie, and a straight fold. Rip the weaver's favorite tie, cut according to same and sew up, inserting a strip of cotton flannel to keep the shape of the tie. The tie used as pattern can be easily stitched together again. Buy, then, of course, take a very small remnant.

Young girls' middie ties and ladies' fancy neckwear can also be easily made. It will take the trouble to examine those in the shops. Silk poplin, in navy blue, makes a surprisingly good-looking tie for a young high school lad.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To frost a cake, only to the very edge and prevent icing from running down the sides, double a piece of stiff waxed paper and pin it about the cake about half an inch above top of cake. Spread icing on evenly and thickly, then after icing is set remove paper.

New Kind of Pillow Cases.—Those who are planning their winter sewing: Plan also to include a few pairs of pillow cases. But don't buy a yard of muslin or pillow tubing. Instead, buy the medium weight bleached outing flannel, and make them plain with a two-inch hem. You will not go back to using starched muslin, as they are easier washed and require little or no ironing, no starch, and they are softer, warmer and in every way more desirable. If you are a brooder of ones are desired, the outing ones are still just as nice. You can also get it by the yard embroidered in colors, and again often used for children's skirts. Make sheets of outing, too, if you wish to use sheets instead of blankets.

To Steam Corduroy and Velvet Coats.—Take large basin, fill with full of boiling water, place corduroy part of coat over basin and let steam from three to five minutes. This is harmless and successful. Be sure to place right side to the steam.

THE TABLE.

Corn Beef and Kale (new recipe)—Wash and clean kale, then put on boil; throw off the first two waters. Measure one cup of corn beef, cook fifteen minutes; after skimming off scum add kale to corn beef. Cook about three hours. When it is done do not have on too much water; thicken a little with flour or cornstarch.

Thanksgiving Spice Cake.—Two cups light brown sugar, one-half cup butter or vegetable fat, one cup sour milk, two cups flour, one-third cup soda, one-fourth cup baking powder, one-fourth cup cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon allspice, two egg yolks. Cream the fat, gradually add sugar and the well-beaten yolks of eggs. Mix all dry ingredients together and add alternately with sour milk. Beat well together and bake in two layers in a moderately quick oven. Filling: One cup sugar, one-third cup water, one teaspoon lemon juice, one cup raisins. Boil sugar and water until it spins a thread and pour while heating over the stiffly beaten white of egg. Add the seeded raisins cut in halves. Put this between the cake. Some of the plain icing may be used for the top and decorated with a spray of raisins.

Date Tart.—One cup dates pitted, one cup quartered walnuts, one cup sugar, two eggs, one teaspoon baking powder, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon vanilla, pinch of salt. Beat eggs, add sugar, salt, flour and baking powder and vanilla. Stir, add dates and nuts. Bake in shallow pan thirty minutes in slow oven. Serve with whipped cream or vanilla sauce.

RECIPES.

Cream Cheese and Nut Salad.—Crack a half pound of English walnuts very carefully to keep in halves. Make little balls of cream cheese and put half a walnut on each side. Lay one cup made of lettuce leaves and pour a fresh dressing over them. Serve with wafers.

Chocolate Cake.—Cream one cup brown sugar and scant half cup of lard. Then add one well-beaten egg and one cup sour milk. Mix well and add two tablespoons cocoa, one teaspoon each of baking powder and soda. Just enough flour to make batter of proper thickness to drop from spoon. The success of the cake depends on the batter. Do not use too much flour.

Charity A

The question as to whether it is in any way lowering to accept charity came up the other day. The concrete example who started the discussion was a dear old lady who cannot bear the idea of going into an old folks' home because it is partially supported by charitable contributions.

She thinks it will be degrading to accept that measure of charity.

Don't Put a Blot on the Name of Charity.

There can be no blot on the name of charity than this feeling: Anyone who by giving in a spirit of patronage or superiority helps to degrade the sense of repentance and degradation has much to answer for.

A doctor told me the other day that it is the small salaried lower middle class (I always use such terms in the financial sense), and not the very poor who suffer most from the need of medical attendance.

The Generosity of Doctors.

"We doctors are always ready to give our services where there is need," he said, "and the very poor for help."

The gift frankly and turn to for help. It's the small salaried middle class on whom sickness falls the heaviest. It's almost impossible for them to put aside a margin for doctor's bills, and when they are sick they are in a tight place. Sometimes they go without medical advice when they need it badly, and sometimes they starve themselves afterwards to pay the bills. All because it seems degrading to them to ask for charity.

Too bad charity has such a bad name."

It is indeed.

To my mind charity is the right of everyone who needs it (if he has done his best not to need it) and should be accepted with dignity as a right, not a privilege.

I believe that the world owes every man and woman in it a living provided that man or woman can't in all his power to earn that living.

It may be that ill health or in-

Right. Industrial conditions or other circumstances for which the individual is not to blame prevent him from earning a decent living or from being able to give his children an education or from saving for sickness or old age. Why should anyone in such a position be ashamed to accept help from those whose better fortune lays an obligation upon them to give it to him?

It is as if someone who has been playing a game squarely and to the best of his ability should feel ashamed that the cards had run against him.

There are only two classes of people who have any reason for shame in this connection—they are the people who have been too lazy and shiftless to deserve charity and those who have given in such a spirit as to make charity a synonym for degradation. And so queer a thing is human life that these people who seldom are ashamed.

With My Letter Friends.

Question.—I am a man later. What is the remedy for such a case?

Answer.—You have rather an unusual disease. I can't tell you how to cure the disease without knowing what caused it. Your experience with men has probably been unfortunate. You need to meet some worth-while man.

I do wish people who write me for advice would give me correct names and sufficient addresses. A very touching letter came to me the other day from a man who wanted to know whether his duty was to his parents or to his fiancée, who had been taken ill and sent to another climate. I sat down directly (in the middle of a personal letter) and wrote him a long and full answer. The address was insufficient and the letter came back a few days ago. If he will send me his full address I will send it back to him. I never betray your trust and I wish you wouldn't distrust me.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: While away visiting last summer I met a young man who is nineteen years old. He was very nice to me while I was there and I liked him better than any other young man I ever met. He seemed to think quite a bit of me, too.

(1) When I returned home I sent him a card, telling him that I had proper thing to do.

(2) After about two weeks he wrote me a letter. How long should I have waited to answer this letter?

(3) It has been two weeks since I answered it and I have not as yet made a reply. How long should I have waited to answer this letter?

(4) I am six years old and this is the first time I have ever corresponded with. He is a country school teacher and appears to be a gentleman. Am I too young to correspond with a boy friend if my parents do not object?

SNOOKUMS.

(1) If the boy helped to entertain you by giving you places, it was all right to show that you appreciated him by writing a card. A girl, however, does not even send a boy a card as a rule unless he asks her to write.

(2) You should have waited at least two weeks.

(3) He is not under any obligation to write at all and so can take as long as he likes to answer you.

(4) No.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl eighteen years old. When I was a little girl we lived next door to some people who had a boy named John. I fell in love with this boy. A year ago he left town. He wrote me at least once a week, and he always wrote me real nice letters. I love him so much I don't know what to do. I took a dislike to him and now I let me go with him. About a week ago he came back to this town and asked me to go to a show with him. I said no, and he wouldn't let me. What should I do? I don't know what to do. GERMANY AWAKENS TO BIG DECREASE IN THE BIRTH RATE

Society is Formed to Prevent Race
Suicide.—War Taken Terrible
Inroads of Pick of Manhood.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Berlin, November 23.—With the formal foundation, on October 18, of the "Deutsche Gesellschaft für Bevölkerungs Politik," roughly translated, the "German Society for Population Increase," the efforts of a relatively small body of men to check the decrease that has been noticeable in the German birthrate for more than forty years have at last won widespread recognition.

It has taken the war, with its terrible inroads on the pick of German manhood, to bring thousands to a realization of the soundness of the claims of the few—that the birthrate of the Empire is going backward, and that after the war, Germany faces the retrogression that has been going on in France if something is not done. The new society, which informally has been in existence for three months, has mapped out very definite, concrete plans for combating the ever-increasing childlessness of the population. These plans include a certain amount of legislation which apparently is approved by nearly all parties, and an educational program by medical and pedagogical circles.

The legislation includes a revision of taxation schedules which shall place an equal burden upon the family man and the bachelor so that the latter will be "literally driven into matrimony." It includes "motherhood premiums" intended to counteract the economic difficulty of bringing children into the world, and the burden of supporting them.

Of great importance in the eyes of the founders of the new society, the plans to contemplate a resolution of the question of sterilization, which, it is hoped, can be brought about. The society counts on a campaign to decrease the training period of trades and professions so that young men will become money earners at an earlier time, and upon educational work by family physicians and teachers.

Few of the rulers of the various German states, large and small, but have expressed themselves thoroughly in accord with the ideals of the society's plans. Emperor William and the King of Bavaria especially are declared to be enthusiastically behind the project. Only the Social Democratic party, of all the many parties in the Empire, has not gone on record as in favor of most or all of the detailed plans, and only certain labor circles, who fear that increased population means lowered wages eventually, have not taken up cudgels in behalf of the society.

The originator of the movement may be said to be Professor Julius Wolf, one of the most distinguished and widely known economists of Germany, formerly of the faculty of the Technical High School of Berlin. He is president of the new organization. Russia's gigantic increase in population, the tremendous fertility of its people, induced him many years ago to begin studying the population problem. He devoted more and more time to it as he came to realize how France had gone backward, and how strong a tendency Germany showed to follow in the same footsteps. His ideas became increasingly radical as he found that Germany's birthrate had dropped 40.7 per thousand in 1870 to 28.5 in 1911, and was still decreasing.

Gradually he has gathered around him a group of the most eminent medical, scientific, and pedagogical men from every part of Germany, who form the nucleus of the new society. He has written much on the subject, but he has worked in other and more practical ways. They now pay about the same direct tax, and their advantage comes in a smaller indirect tax—less for salt, sugar, beer, and other eatables and drinkables because they have less mouths to feed. Therefore the matter must be equalized by a higher direct tax, one which they shall feel as no indirect tax ever is felt.

In recognition, however, that an injustice easily be worked if general conditions, especially working conditions, remain the same as at present, the society looks forward to a readjustment of the existing apprenticeship and training periods through which working men and professional men now have to go. This readjustment may have to be legislative, it may come voluntarily in many cases. In the one way or the other, the society holds, it must be made possible for the young man to earn a livelihood at an earlier age than heretofore, and hence to marry earlier.

Professor Wolf is also a champion of the "motherhood pension system" now in vogue in Australia. He would have the state offer 300 or 400 marks to the mother who gives birth to a fifth child, and some other sum for each additional baby. He very frankly calls the system "bribery," but believes it would be effective, bribery, and that the money would be the deciding weight in the scales when whether another child could be afforded or not.

Professor Wolf counts on the effectiveness of a universal campaign by doctors and teachers, ministers, and priests, for earlier marriages, though this applies largely to the country districts, and especially to Catholic sections where the influence of the priest is great.

Considering the rigid regulation of disease, Professor Wolf points out that at present the German man marries, on the average, at the late age of 29.

He proposes to minimize disease by registration of the diseased, and the quarantining of the disease spreaders. "Though the war has opened pecple's eyes to the need of checking the German decrease in the birthrate, said Professor Wolf, "I do not personally believe that it, alone, will have a serious effect."

"The German population of seventy millions is roughly divided into 33,600,000 men and 36,500,000 women. Even if our losses are very heavy at the end, say a million dead, there still remain 32,500,000 men, a large proportion of them capable of being fathers. The decrease will go on unless we look deeper than the war for its causes."

"That it has not been greater is due solely to an even larger decrease in the death rate, so that the situation has looked rosier than it actually is. People have been too prone to look at the net increase in population, which has been stationary at 800,000 a year, and not at the Russian increase of 14,000,000 annually."

"It is in that direction that the danger lies. We are too closely approximating France, standing still while our Slav neighbor grows by leaps and bounds. France, in my opinion, is slowly but surely sinking back to a position something like that of Spain, a second rate power. We do not want to do the same thing."

"The outcome of the war naturally can have a very far-reaching effect on the whole problem. If we were conceivably to lose, there is no doubt that the economic results would make it difficult to carry out our plans. If, on the other hand, we win, as of course I believe we shall, the plans are infinitely easier of execution."

"There is to be considered on one side that we probably shall get an indemnity which will do much to relieve any possible economic stress. On the other there is the possibility that we shall have new territory with its fertile population to aid in building up that of the Empire as a whole."

The new society has established headquarters at Kurfürstendamm 45, Berlin. Its directorate reads like the roster of all the distinguished medical, legal, pedagogical and scientific men of Germany. The first three are represented by the three vice-presidents, Dr. Dippel, President of the German Physicians Association of Leipzig; Professor Dr. Georg von Mayr, former imperial under secretary of state of Munich; and Doctor of Laws von Strauss and Torney, president of the Senate of the Prussian Administrative Supreme Court of Berlin.

Simple Case of Observation.

"Sometimes a very simple thing will clearly reveal a man's intentions," said Professor Pato. "For instance, you can tell by the way he carries his suitcase whether he is going on a journey or returning from one. When he is going away he carries it toward the railway station, and when he is coming home he carries it away from the station."—Kansas City Star.

Futile Aspiration.

"When I was a boy I thought I'd rather be a great baseball player than anything else in the world." "Of course, you have changed your mind." "Not exactly. I have merely realized that there is no hope."

NOTED ARSON TRIAL OPENS IN ST. LOUIS

Climax of Famous Case for two Million Dollar Fire Losses Open in Court Today.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 23.—An unusual trial began in St. Louis on Monday, as the culmination of charges that there has existed in this city a widespread arson conspiracy. A long list of fires, which have occurred in St. Louis, with evidence of incendiary origin, is estimated to have not been the work of chance, but of a conspiracy of some $2,500,000 in the past few years. In view of this prevalence of incendiarism the police had long been on their guard, but it was not until September 11 last that they confirmed their suspicions by the alleged confession of Herbert O. Baker, a fire insurance agent.

Baker was arrested on the night of September 11, a few hours after four men, afterward referred to as "torches," were taken as they were unloading four barrels of gasoline at the plant of the Christen Bellows Manufacturing Co.

The arrest of these four men was due to the fact that the head of the firm had revealed details of a plot which he told the police had been proposed to him by an insurance man and which he presented to enter in order to assist the police in the detection of the guilty.

After Baker had made a statement to the police, it was announced at detective headquarters that Baker had revealed, not the existence of an arson trust, but that several groups of men, working on similar lines, had conspired with heads of business firms to set property on fire and that the firms might collect excessive insurance.

An insurance agent always was in these plots, according to the story, and he was to reap his profit by getting commissions on the excess insurance written before the fire.

The grand jury began an inquiry into the arson conspiracy on September 16, and returned final indictments on October 1.

The following were indicted:—Roy M. B. Tidd, mayor of Webster Groves, Mo., a fashionable suburb of St. Louis; president of the Nixon-Jones Printing company, whose five-story plant was burned on the night of September 4. Barrels and boxes of gasoline were found in the basement of the printing plant after the fire, the police said. Before his indictment Tidd had brought a $10,000 damage suit against Assistant Fire Chief Rucker because after the fire Rucker would not give him free access to the burned printing house.

Julius R. Bersch, vice president of the Bersch Insurance Agency company, Bersch was named in the same indictment as Tidd in connection with the Nixon-Jones fire. The indictment was based on testimony that Bersch, in trying to arrange a plot to fire the Christen Bellows company plant, had referred to the Nixon-Jones fire and had said that he "would get the insurance." Bersch also was indicted for alleged participation in the fire that destroyed the Gilmore-Bonfig Decorating company establishment on July 24, and for the projected burning of the Christen Bellows factory.

Harry G. Gilmore, head of the Gilmore-Bonfig Decorating company, for alleged complicity in burning of the establishment of that concern.

Harry Imel, secretary to Gilmore, indicted in connection with the Gilmore-Bonfig fire.

Edward Milner, alleged "torch," accused in connection with the Gilmore-Bonfig fire; also in connection with the alleged attempt to fire the Christen Bellows plant.

Otto F. Lemann, insurance adjuster, indicted in connection with the alleged plot to set fire to the Christen Bellows plant.

Morris Greenberg, Max Greenberg, and Michael O'Connor, alleged "torches," indicted in connection with the plot to fire the Christen Bellows establishment.

No indictment was returned against Herbert O. Baker, the agent, whose arrest opened the way for the exhaustive grand jury inquiry. Baker was a principal witness before the grand jury.

INSPECT TELEPHONE SYSTEMS OF STATE

Railroad Commission Begins Survey to Ascertain Character of Service and Property Conditions.

(SPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 23.—A survey of the telephone systems of the state to ascertain the character of the service and complete information as to the physical property is being conducted by the engineering staff of the Wisconsin railroad commission. The state has been divided into districts and as each inspector goes over the physical property of the telephone company he draws a rough map showing the lines, exchanges and connections.

Up to date about two-thirds of the 1,000 telephone companies of the state have been inspected. At the rate this work is progressing the entire field should be covered in the next six or seven months. At the chief inspector's office here a large map of Wisconsin is used to show the location of exchanges and lines, and as inspections are made and the detailed information obtained this map is completed. This map will show not only the location of the exchanges, but also what adjacent towns or villages are served by the same company. Complete information is tabulated showing the character of the wire used, whether the poles are painted or not, and how many parties are on each wire.

One of the duties of the inspector, according to the rules formulated by the commission, is to make observations of the service given by any company whose plant he is inspecting. This observation includes a test of the telephone operators to determine the length of time it requires for answering. The Wisconsin Telephone company maintains regular observation boards in eight of the largest cities of the state. The operators on these boards keep a continuous record of the calls and the length of time for answering.

Commissioner Walter Alexander declares that when this information is obtained and the map showing this data is charted, that the information will be of valuable service not only to the public but to the telephone companies. The information can be used when valuation questions arise and applications received under the recent anti-duplication law.

Saloon Opponents Seek to Make State Dry Next Year at Election a

In 1890 a local option law was passed, and the same year Van Buren county adopted local option by a large majority and it has remained so ever since, although the "wets" brought the issue to a vote five times. Van Buren was the only county to add local option for several years. In 1894 two other counties, wet and dry, but returned to the wet column a few years later. In 1886 the State Anti-Saloon League was organized, and at that time Van Buren was the only dry county. Between 1886 and 1907 a number of the counties were thrown back and forth on the local option issue, some voting dry but returning to the wet column, so that in 1907—only eight counties, Van Buren, Jackson, Madison, Lincoln, and Perry, was still the only dry county in the state. Today forty-three of the eighty-three counties in the state are dry, but after county voted last spring for a referendum, the state board of supervisors reversed its stand and decided to let it pass. The dries appealed to the supreme court, and a favorable decision was handed down. In the Upper Peninsula, where the dries succeeded in forcing local option elections in Alger, Chippewa, Dickinson, Gogebie, Luce, Mackinac, and Mackinaw counties, the wet counties of the spring of 1911, when they won in each of the counties, but by a narrow majority. The dries brought on local option elections again last spring in Alger, Dickinson and Chippewa counties and also Iron. Iron county was found to have gone dry by a majority of 550. Alger county, which gave a wet majority of 178 in 1916, went dry after a referendum. Beraga county, with a majority of 6 and Chippewa county, with a wet by 635 majority in 1910, reduced this majority to 42.

The dry leaders in several of the counties of the Peninsula will not wait until 1918 to get the saloons abolished, if their plans do not meet with success. In Delta and Schoolcraft counties local option election have been held, and next April, in Menominee, Mackinac, and Mackinaw counties, the county boards of supervisors will throw down the local option petitions but the dries have asked the supreme court to issue writs of mandamus compelling the several boards to order the elections.

The fight in Delta county is expected to be especially aggressive.
